French Diptomacy at Fault. If the French Government is often in the wrong, the opposition cannot always be said to be in the right. As regards the Mexican question, the latter is now exulting in the defeat of the Government; but as regards the Italian question, the Democrats have committed a gross mistake.

Carried away by their sympathics for Italy, they have unknowingly embraced the cause of Prussia, the hereditary enemy of France, without reflecting that they were thereby playing into the hands of our enemies.

Jules Fayre and his Democratic followers now begin to see that they have committed a great improdence. The head of the Democrats has just published a collection of speeches, with a preface, in which he says, "The map of Germany has been changed without our participating in the alteration, and much to our disadvantage. A most formidable national and military unity is now taking place at our frontiers."

The illustrious orator is now as much anadvocate for enlarging our military system as be was formerly opposed to our expedition to

The Reorganization of the French Army. The Monitour has published the definitive plan for the reorganization of the army. It is as follows:-The forces of France will be composed as we have already announced-First, the Active Army; second, the Reserve; third, the National Guard Mobile. There will be called out each year by lot 30,000, to form part of the Active Army, and 80,000 will be comprised in the Reserve.

According to official calculations, the former will represent the permanent force of about 417,000 men, whilst the reserve will amount to 424,600. The period of active service is reduced to six years, as is also the time for remaining in the service.

In the National Guard the period of service will be three years. Exoueration from active service will be maintained, but limited according to the number of re-enlistments effected in the preceding year. The reserve will be divided into two portions: the first may be placed at the disposition of the Minister of War by decree.

of young men having served in the active army or been instructed in the pererve, will not be frequently called upon to move.

Its duty is reserved for the detense of the frontiers, strong places, and coasts, at the time when the permasent army and reserve are on active service. Regulatory arrangements wil offer numerous facilities for substitutions. The period for authorization to contract marriage will be advanced. Several other provision might be mentioned, but we believe the Government will not delay in making known in a complete form the changes which the interest of the country and the care of its defense, and of its dignity, have led it to effect, in accordance with public opinion.

It is reported that Murshal Randon, not feeling equal, on account of his age, to carry out the new reforms contemplated, will shortly return his portfolio to the hands of the Emperor. It is rumored that he will be succeeded by General Trochu, but it is not likely that, according to the French wilitary system, that a simple General would be intrusted with a charge which would place him above the Marshals of mally informed Mr. Bigelow, late United States Minister at the Court of the Tuileries, that the French troops will leave Mexico in the month of March. This report, however, in no way agrees with that of the beginning of the year, which stated that, according to an agreement entered into between the Government of Washington and that of the Tuileries, the Freuch troops were to leave America in three divisions, the first to leave in November, 1866. Return of the French from Rome.

The French garrison of Rome is now on its way to France. The Patrie, however, informs us that four companies will remain some weeks onger in the Eternal City, but what for we do not know, unless it is to form a guard of honor for the Empress during her stay in Rome. The foreign legion of Antibes, as it is called, is to be augmented to 2000 men. Desertions daily thin the ranks of these defenders of the Pope. No dependence can be placed upon these mercenaries, who avail themselves of every opportunity of either returning to France or of going over to the army of-Victor Emanuel

The Pfigrimage of the Empress to Rome. This long-talked-of journey is still one of the standing topics of political talk. There now appears to be no doubt but that the intended pligrimage will take place. A Marseilles journal says that rooms have already been taken for the Empress in the Holy City, and that her Majesty has refused to accept the offer of the Holy Father to inhabit the Quirinal,

The Exhibition of 1867. The works are progressing rapidly. Merry writers have dwelt on the ugly exterior of the exhibition, which is like a huge gasometer, or, as Veuillot says, like a huge sausage in a dish of spinage. To say the truth, the building is every day beginning to look uglier. It is far from imposing. However, the disposition of the interior is most admirable, and promises a perfectly arranged exhibition of the world's industry, from raw material to perfect manufacture. At any rate, it has kindled the enthusiasm of Ceneral Hassan Ali Khan, the Persian Ambassador at the French Court. After a recent visit he sent off one of the officers of his embassy to Toheran, to impress upon his Government the expediency of making a greater figure in the Champs de Mars next year than the authorities had arranged for.

The Americans are also in great force, and their club is already formed and the club quarters are taken.

All the beavy iron-work and rooting of the building have been completed, and the light framing and glazing are being proceeded with. It has been resolved to unite the bank of the Seine with the gardens, by means of two tunonter directly into the grounds. All the efforts of the gardeners are being concentrated on the provide round the building, which attract already a large number of visitors, and arrivals from all parts of the world are now taking place. Such an influx of persons is expected as never was yet seen in the capital of France. A PART STORY IN THE STORY OF TH
